Themes in American Literature II: 1865 to Present		American Literature: Reconstruction to Present
FROM:		TO:
A survey of American literature and literary history from the late 19th century to the present, examining works that depict urbanization, immigration, class conflict, and social change.		The course focuses on movements and voices in American literature from the Reconstruction Era to the present day through diverse literary works, including novels, short stories, poetry, and essays. Themes such as the American Dream, social justice, immigration, race and ethnicity, gender roles, and the impact of technology will be examined within their historical and cultural contexts.
Department of History, Philosophy and Political Science
1. PHI 6700 - Political Philosophy
Change: Course Description
FROM:		TO:
This course provides students with a broad and solid theoretical grasp of political problems. As a result, students who take the course will be better positioned to make educated and adequate choices in the innumerable political situations of everyday life. The course relies on conceptual analysis, reading and interpreting texts, and writing clearly and effectively. The result is an enhanced ability to think critically, understand sophisticated and nuanced political discourse, and intervene in it for the sake of civic engagement and communal life.		This course is an examination of foundational concepts and problems of political philosophy: the individual, society, and the state; law, legitimization of authority, and political power; freedom and servitude; wealth and poverty; autonomy and technology. We review the work of political thinkers such as Aristotle, Hobbes, Marx, Foucault, bell hooks, Frantz Fanon, and others.
