

Writing for a Public Audience

Facilitated by Professor Jamie Aroosi (History, Philosophy, and Political Science)

Looking to share your research with a broader audience?

This opportunity will help scholars translate their work for the public—bridging the gap between academic writing and public engagement. While our training often prepares us to write for scholarly audiences, many of us are left unprepared to communicate our research beyond the university walls. If you're driven to make your work have a real-world impact, this is for you!
